FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS:

Who are the Honors Program students at Buffalo State?

- Over 500 academically committed students, in nearly every major, from across New York, the U.S., and the world!

Are Honors seminar courses more work than other general education courses?

- Honors courses are often discussion-based, not lecture-based, and focus more on student engagement and critical thinking skills.

Is the Honors Program just about academics?

- Beyond the academic requirements, Honors students are encouraged to get involved on campus in events, clubs, leadership positions, service projects and more.

How do I apply to the Honors Program?

- First-year applicants are automatically considered for admission to the Honors Program. No separate application or fee!

What are the criteria to be invited to join?

- A holistic review considering high school GPA, extra curriculars, leadership, writing ability, and promise of contribution. Typically, invited students had at least a 91 GPA in high school.

Can I join the Honors Program as a transfer student?

- High achieving transfer students may be eligible to join depending on credits remaining and schedule availability. Contact Honors Director Dr. McMillan to discuss eligibility.
